Profile

A planning, housing and regeneration professional, I have been a consultant since 2011, building on a highly successful career in Local Government in London. This included posts at the London Borough of Tower Hamlets (2004-2008) and the London Borough of Croydon (2008-2011). A professional town planner by background, my consultancy experience includes work with local authorities, registered providers and the private sector.

Recent Commissions

I am currently (spring 2018) working with the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea to develop a strategy for the delivery of new affordable housing within a strong place-making approach.

In 2017 I understood a research project (with Andrew Travers of Halliford Consulting) for London Councils on the viability of a Collaborative Delivery Vehicle for new housing.

In 2016 I worked with the Leader and Chief Executive of LB Redbridge to develop a new Place Directorate for the Council, with integrated services capable of delivering sustainable regeneration.

I have undertaken whole service reviews of key services such as regeneration, capital delivery, housing and planning for a number of clients including Bristol City Council, LB Barnet and LB Waltham Forest.

Working with LB Barnet and Genesis Housing Association, I devised a new funding and delivery strategy for the Grahame Park estate renewal scheme, designed to tackle a £100 million capital funding gap.

Skills

My core skills include strategy and planning, project and programme review, project delivery, organisational support and remodelling, stakeholder engagement and negotiation.
